NIH Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases ~ National Resource Center ($482,233)

The NOF established the NIH Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases ~ National Resource Center with a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and has been operating the program with additional NIH funding ever since. One of NOF's oldest programs, the Resource Center is dedicated to increasing awareness, knowledge, and understanding about osteoporosis and related bone diseases, especially among at-risk but underserved populations.

2007 was another year of accomplishments for the National Resource Center, including the following highlights:

2008 Pocket Calendar with Tips and Resources for Healthy Bones for Life

Designed for women of all ages, the calendar addressed such topics as getting enough calcium and vitamin D, taking care of kids and their bones, evaluating one's own risk for osteoporosis including understanding issues especially related to women and knowing your red flags, brushing up on healthy teeth, and preventing falls that break bones. Close to 50,000 calendars were distributed in late 2007.

Getting Good Health Care for You and Your Family

The new leaflet Getting Good Health Care for You and Your Family was created to address the universal need for materials on how to talk to your doctor. The leaflet provides nine excellent resources and information about how to access them on such topics as being an active member of your health care team, choosing a doctor, finding reliable medical information, getting a second opinion, talking to your doctor or nurse, and preparing for a visit to the doctor's office.

Check Up On Your Bone Health Interactive Web Tool

The Resource Center's interactive Web tool, Check Up On Your Bones, helps people to recognize personal risk factors for bone loss and osteoporosis. Designed for adults age 19 and older, the tool provides personalized information on risk factors and resources based on a 5-minute personal profile filled out by the visitor to the site. To make people aware of the tool and encourage them to use it, the Center developed a bookmark promoting the tool's Web address (www.niams.nih.gov/health_info/bone).

Asian Initiative

As part of an ongoing Asian Initiative, the Center completed the following projects:

Asian Americans/Pacific Islanders and Bone Health Literature Review.

This review of current peer-reviewed literature on Asian populations here and abroad, their bone health status, and successful health education interventions targeting Asians will be completed and posted online in 2008. The review will be of particular relevance to healthcare providers and other professionals interested in improving the bone health of the Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders they serve.

Chinese Adaptation and Translation of the Surgeon General's Report on Bone Health and Osteoporosis: What It Means to You.

People who prefer to get health information in Chinese now have access to important information about their bone health in a Chinese transadaptation of the Surgeon General's Report (SGR) people's piece, What It Means to You. To make the publication culturally appropriate and relevant, the Resource Center staff arranged for new photographs featuring Chinese Americans, revised lists of calcium-rich foods to reflect a more traditional Chinese diet, and coordinated the translation of the text into traditional Chinese. The SGR people's piece is also available in English and Spanish.

Exhibit Program

Exhibiting at professional meetings and local health fairs is one important way the Resource Center lets health professionals and consumers know about the Center and what it has to offer. In 2007, the Center reached tens of thousands of people and distributed materials through exhibits, registration bag stuffers, and other ways at 28 meetings and events.

EDUCATION ($2,348,869)

The Education Department of the National Osteoporosis Foundation is responsible for developing educational materials and activities for consumers, patients and medical professionals. During 2007, the Department had the following accomplishments:

Patient Education

NOF operates an Inquiry and Response Center. Many inquiries are handled personally by NOF staff and nearly all contacts receive printed information to help them be better informed about their condition. In response to these inquiries, NOF distributes educational brochures and fact sheets without charge.

Boning Up on Osteoporosis: a Guide to Prevention and Treatment is core to NOF's educational materials for individuals, and is central to the organization's outreach and education mission. This 74-page booklet provides a comprehensive, yet concise, overview of the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of osteoporosis. The target audience for this booklet is individuals who need information about the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of osteoporosis. During 2007, NOF initiated the revision and redesign of Boning Up on Osteoporosis, focusing on four areas:

- Updating and expanding content;
- Addressing the needs of other patient audiences;
- Redesigning and enhancing readability, based on health literacy concerns using health literacy guidelines
- Spanish translation, including appropriate redesign and formatting.

Additionally, NOF's educational materials including fact sheets, website information and print publications were reviewed and updated to ensure consistency and accuracy of information.

Support Groups

NOF oversees and coordinates a nationwide network of patient support groups focused on helping people living with osteoporosis to cope with the disease and improve their quality of life.

Not all people requiring support and information are able to participate in one of the NOF support groups. To help address this need, NOF launched a social support and networking site to connect together those people affected by osteoporosis. Membership is open to patients, caregivers or health professionals who have a personal or professional interest in the prevention, diagnosis and/or treatment of osteoporosis. Access "The Osteoporosis Community" through the NOF website at www.nof.org or <http://osteoporosis.clinicahealth.com>.

Professional Education

The 7th International Symposium on Osteoporosis (7th ISO) was held April 18-22, 2007 in Washington, DC at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel. A total of 921 health professionals participated.

The goal of the 7th ISO was to provide physicians and other healthcare practitioners with the most current and clinically relevant information on the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of osteoporosis. The design of the symposium objectives, content and format supported the learning needs of physicians and allied health practitioners who are involved in the day-to-day activities of counseling, diagnosing and treating people at risk for, or who have, osteoporosis. Findings presented at the meeting provided researchers and healthcare practitioners with vital information and data about osteoporosis that will assist them to better identify people at risk and improve treatment of those who have osteoporosis. The target audience was primary care practitioners as well as specialists in endocrinology, rheumatology, OB-GYN, geriatrics and others.

Highlights of the meetings included an address by the Honorable Mike Leavitt, Secretary of Health and Human Services and by Dr. Mark McClellan, Visiting Senior Fellow AEI-Brookings Joint Center for Regulatory Studies, and former Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration and former administrator for the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

Continuing Education

During 2007, two issues of Osteoporosis: Clinical Updates, NOF's professional newsletter, were produced and distributed to more than 27,000 professional members and other interested health professionals. The issues covered the following important topics:

- Bone Quality & Osteoporotic Fracture
- Bariatric Surgery and Osteoporosis

In addition to live educational activities, NOF also offers the opportunity to obtain professional education credit through its website. Activities are based upon the content of the Osteoporosis: Clinical Updates newsletter. More than 400 physicians and health professionals participated in NOF's on-line continuing education program, an increase of 30 percent over the previous year.

NOF launched its Osteoporosis Slide Set for Health Professionals in April 2007. The purpose of the PowerPoint presentation is to provide slides to physicians and other healthcare professionals to use when they are speaking to their professional colleagues. The slides may be downloaded from the NOF Web site for insertion in any professional presentation. Registration is required of those who wish to download the slides and follow up includes an evaluation form.

The CME component of this project will be based upon case studies. This component is currently underway and is expected to be added to the website in mid-year 2008.

Outreach and Exhibit Activities

In order to increase awareness of NOF and the educational materials available for patients and professionals, NOF exhibits at various professional membership society meetings throughout the year. During 2007, NOF participated as exhibitors at annual professional meetings, attended by more than 72,000 health professionals.

During the year, NOF also participated in NBC4 Your Health and Fitness Expo, a community-wide health fair, attended by more than 80,000 people.

In addition, NOF distributed free health fair packets to community groups. Each packet contains multiple copies of NOF publications and permission to make copies of fact sheets on the most common questions asked by the public.

RESEARCH ($205,464)

Research Grants

A primary focus of NOF is to ensure that adequate funding is available to support scientific research on osteoporosis prevention, diagnosis and treatment. In addition to its advocacy for increased federal funding for the National Institutes of Health and other centers of bone research, NOF raises private funds from donors, which makes it possible to provide research grants to scientists who are just starting their careers. Over the past 20 years, the NOF Research Grants Program has provided more than $2.4 million in donor-supported funding to encourage young investigators as they begin their research careers in bone health science.

Three $50,000 research grants were competitively awarded to beginning investigators for a total of $150,000 for 2007.

PUBLIC POLICY ($615,908)

NOF advocates for support of federal osteoporosis research, awareness, education and patient access to quality osteoporosis health care. Highlights of NOF's 2007 public policy efforts include:

Improving Access to Quality Health Care

2007 marked the finalization of the rule governing the law mandating Medicare coverage of bone density measurement, legislation which NOF championed through Congress approximately a decade ago. The new rule provides a lower threshold for testing patients taking certain drugs, and based on scientific evidence of the World Health Organization cited in the 2004 Surgeon General's report on bone health and osteoporosis, provides for DXA of the central skeleton (e.g. hip and spine) as the only method for confirming diagnosis of osteoporosis and monitoring drug therapy.

After meeting with federal health officials to address its concerns about potentially reduced public access to osteoporosis testing, particularly for the elderly, the frail, and individuals in rural areas, as a result of reduced Medicare reimbursement, NOF, as a leader of the Alliance to Protect Patient Access to Osteoporosis Testing, was instrumental in having federal legislation, the "Medicare Fracture Prevention and Osteoporosis Testing Act of 2007," introduced in Congress to maintain reasonable Medicare reimbursement for osteoporosis testing until a study of the effects of any revisions could be completed. NOF has continued its advocacy to promote this legislative solution through a webcast, its interactive website, newsletter articles, legislative alerts, briefings, and press communications.

NOF also joined other groups to promote patient-friendlier health policies. For instance, it commented on the need for Medicare to expand its efforts to inform Americans with Medicare coverage about the critical preventive services available to them as well as to provide easier ways to navigate health plan marketing materials and comparisons among plans. It also joined in creating materials, available on the NOF website, to respond to Medicare enrollee questions and helped additional individuals with questions about reimbursement to navigate the numerous available assistance programs.

Advocate Training and Development

In 2006, NOF convened another regional Strong Voices for Strong Bones Training Meeting in Providence, Rhode Island. Central to NOF's public policy outreach in the states, this one-day meeting provided interactive workshops focused on training attendees to effectively communicate with lawmakers on osteoporosis-related issues. State officials, local civic leaders and health professionals discussed barriers to osteoporosis healthcare and prevention while encouraging advocates to address these challenges.

Expanding and Improving Research

NOF, as a leader of the National Coalition for Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases (Bone Coalition), advocated for increasing funding for targeted osteoporosis and bone research at the National Institutes of Health. Scientists and staff met with leaders at NIH to discuss underserved areas of bone-related research. During the Fiscal Year (FY) 2007, NIH estimates that $168 million will be spent on osteoporosis-related research. In tandem with other organizations, NOF successfully advocated for funding the National Children's Study at NIH, which includes planned physical assessments of growth, including DXA scans for bone density as 100,000 children grow.

Working with the Bone Coalition, NOF was instrumental in obtaining congressional funding for the Department of Defense (DOD) bone research program and maintaining the $45 million DOD Peer-Reviewed Medical Research that includes research on osteoporosis and other bone diseases. The Coalition testified before Congress and met with leaders at DOD. It maintained $1 million for the Bone Health Military Medical Readiness Research Program and secured an additional $800,000 in funding for FY 2008.

As a result of coordinated advocacy efforts, in which NOF played a role, several federal health agencies that conduct research and impact those with osteoporosis have increased their budgets. These include the NIH, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention along with its National Center for Health Statistics, the Agency for Health Care Research and Quality and the Food and Drug Administration.

COMMUNICATIONS ($1,085,187)

Building Public Awareness

Osteoporosis Report Newsletter: NOF's quarterly newsletter, The Osteoporosis Report, reaches more than 60,000 individuals. The newsletter provides a frequent source of reliable, up-to-date information on osteoporosis and bone health, including articles on lifestyle, osteoporosis prevention diagnosis and treatment, calcium-rich recipes and NOF initiatives.

Media: NOF worked with a variety of consumer and trade media outlets to provide the most recent osteoporosis and bone health information and to coordinate interviews for NOF's medical experts.

Health Forum: NOF partnered with the TV show, Health Forum, to produce a feature on osteoporosis and NOF called Healthy Bones, Healthy Lives, which was filmed at the 7th ISO. It featured information on the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of osteoporosis and included interviews with NOF's leadership, including Dr. Ethel Siris, president of NOF; Dr. Larry Raisz, NOF Board Member; Dr. Deborah T. Gold, NOF Board Member; Dr. Felicia Cosman, clinical director of NOF; and Leo Schargorodski, executive director of NOF. It also features NOF staff, support group leaders and osteoporosis patients. The segment was broadcasted on WE-Women's Entertainment and on Oxygen Network (Oh!), and on regional ION stations. NOF has posted the piece on its website and on YouTube.

Osteoporosis Awareness and Prevention Month, May 2007

"Osteoporosis. It's Beatable. It's Treatable."

During May, National Osteoporosis Awareness and Prevention Month, NOF partnered to convene a very well attended congressional briefing, "Healthy Bones, Healthy Life," that featured actress Sally Field, NOF President Ethel Siris, MD and NOF Scientific Advisory Council Member Laura Tosi, MD. Senator Lisa Murkowski and Congresswoman Shelley Berkley, who introduced a congressional resolution in support of the month's goals, addressed the forum.

World Osteoporosis Day

NOF joined organizations in 80 countries throughout the world to participate in World Osteoporosis Day on October 20. Our initiatives and activities focused on increasing awareness of osteoporosis and bone health and helping Americans know and reduce their risk of osteoporosis. NOF's efforts included:

Steps for Strong Bones: NOF and Woman's Day magazine joined efforts to challenge individuals across the country to take Steps for Strong Bones and incorporate walking into their daily routine. Participants were asked to track their progress online with a Steps for Strong Bones walking community that offers information on bone health and osteoporosis and incentives to continue walking. The challenge culminated on World Osteoporosis Day.

Beat the Break: In recognition of World Osteoporosis Day, the October issue of Woman's Day magazine encouraged readers to "Beat the Break" by following a safety checklist for preventing falls and fractures in and around the home. In addition, Woman's Day featured the fall prevention checklist online for readers to print out and use as a resource.

Start Right, Stay Strong: NOF also teamed up with Ladies' Home Journal magazine in conjunction with Roche and GlaxoSmithKline to launch a new bone health program, called "Start Right, Stay Strong." The program highlighted the importance of bone health, exercise and nutrition for women across the country through in-mall walking events and online resources. "Start Right Stay Strong" grassroots tour traveled to 10 cities across the country and ended with two events held on October 20th in celebration of World Osteoporosis Day. Each event included a one-mile mall walk, a fitness expert who led the group in stretches, educational booths and materials on bone health and osteoporosis, and the opportunity to have a heel scan from a medical professional. The events encouraged individuals across the country to take action to improve their bone health, recognize their risk for osteoporosis, and help NOF increase awareness of the disease.
